

Times" on an all Russian concert opening the Ann Arbor May Festival, May 9, 1940, Kipnis was soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Ormandy. His share was the two vocal parts from "Lieutenant Kije", the Hallucination Scene from Boris, Galitsky's aria from "Prince Igor", with the "Volga Boatmen" as encore. "Too often bass voices are merely deep or phenomenally powerful, seldom do they have that resonant timbre, the melodic warmth and the lilting, flexible quality which we generally associate with voices of a higher register."

(The bulk of the foregoing was sent by Professor Arnosi, who was obviously strongest on South America. The Editor added much of the performance data, etc., on the United States from such sources as Seltsam's "Annals", Quaintance Eaton's "Opera Caravan", Ewen's "Living Musicians", Briggs' "Requiem for a Yellow Brick Brewery", the books on Chicago by Edward Moore and Ronald Davies, dates supplied by Harold Barnes, etc., plus some reviews kindly supplied by the artist himself, and so is responsible for any shortcomings in that area).

OFF THE AIR. BARBIER VON BAGDAD (Cornelius) a part lasting 23 minutes of a broadcast from Frankfurt Radio on December 25, 1932 has been found with Kipnis as Abdul Hassan, Paul Reinecke as Nureddin. It commences at "Mein Sohn, sei Allahs Frieden hier auf Erden stets beschieden dir" and finishes with the monologue "So schwärmet Jugend". Frankfurt Radio Orchestra is conducted by Hans Rosbaud. 33 LV 165.

Many other radio broadcasts are known to be available in the U.S.A.
 Grateful thanks to Dennis Brew of New Zealand who furnished a large original listing; and for help with matrix numbers, etc. to W. R. Moran and Ted Fagan, U.S.A.; E. Lawrence of E.M.I. Records, Alan Kelly, Sheffield and Jürgen Schmidt, Vienna. It has not been possible to trace matrix numbers for a few titles, though from other indications it is obvious where the recordings fit in. If any reader has the missing numbers, please report same.
